A Guide for Mandated Reporters of Child Abuse & Neglect

A Publication of the Child Protection Unit of the Division of Youth Service
Saipan, CNMI

(Revised Edition)
July 2006
FOREWORD

This publication is a revised edition of an earlier publication A Handbook for Education issued in 1992.

The earlier handbook was compiled by the DYS’ Resource Coordinator, Bion M. Blunt, and had contributed greatly to increase the educator’s expertise and knowledge on child abuse and its complexities.

It is again our hope that with this handbook, you will gain important information on Child Abuse and Neglect. Please take the time to read and study this publication.

As a Mandated Reporter, you are required by law to report all cases of child abuse or suspected child abuse. Although you may have some reporting protocols in place. CNMI law requires that you report directly to the Department of Public Safety within 24 hours.

RECOGNIZING CHILD ABUSE OR NEGLECT

Maltreatment of children usually falls into one or more of four general areas:

1. NEGLECT
2. PHYSICAL ABUSE
3. SEXUAL ABUSE
4. EMOTIONAL ABUSE

Although some forms of abuse or neglect are more difficult to detect than others, there are signs or indicators, which, singly or together, suggest that a child may be in need of help.

These indicators basically are of two types:

• Physical Indicators – such as the child’s appearance (including physical injuries)
• Behavioral Indicators – such as behavior, which the child exhibits as a result of maltreatment.

These indicators are clues. They should help you be tuned in to a child's possible need. It is not necessary to be sure a child is abused or neglected before reporting your concern. In fact, you are among the professionals mandated by the CNMI law to report child abuse and neglect. Anyone who reports possible abuse or neglect is immune from all civil or criminal liability regardless of whether later assessment substantiates or fails to substantiate the report.

A discussion of forms of abuse/neglect and common indicators follows. These are not meant to be all-inclusive, but should serve as clues.
1. NEGLECT is failure to provide for a child’s basic needs (physical, emotional, educational, and medical).
